Clever Juvenile Burglar Sentenced—
Other Cases Heard

Probably the most clever juvenile who has been sentenced in the city court for several years was Rekiis Barr of St. Bank street, a young lad of little more than eight years, who will stay in the Vermont Industrial school at Vergennes until September 24, 1922. Barr, who was brought to court yesterday under the charge of being a delinquent child, confessed to breaking into the Burlington Fruit company's store at the north beach several weeks ago and getting away with considerable goods from their stock and to breaking into Booth's drug store one Sunday afternoon recently and stealing money from the cash register, candy, etc.

In telling of his exploit at the north beach the lad said that he went out there one day and saw a window opened in the second story of the store and thought that he could get in that way. He studied the lay of the land carefully and that night secured a flashlight and after midnight went to the beach, climbed a tree and swung into the window and thence down the stairs into the store where he rifled the contents and let himself out the back door, burying the booty along the beach at various places.

Loretta DeForge, a young girl in her teens, was brought into court on complaint of Charles A. Smith, deputy State probation officer, charged with breaking her period of probation, of three years' duration which started on July 7, 1919. She was found guilty and sentenced to the Vermont Industrial school at Vergennes for the remainder of her minority, or until November 25, 1921.

Alma Hattin of this city, charged with breach of the peace by assaulting Margaret White on August 2, who was partially tried on Wednesday, came into court and pleaded guilty and will receive her sentence at nine o'clock this morning.

The case of the State vs. Margaret White, as the result of the Hattin affair, has been put in and she will be given time to put in her defense this morning.

Mary Johnson Bee, charged with breach of the peace, will be tried this morning at nine o'clock, with City Grand Juror Black prosecuting and Matthew G. Leary defending.

The cases of Edward Bushey of 374 St. Paul street, Wilfred and Paul Provost of 388 St. Paul street, charged with being delinquent children, and with attempting to break into the C. A. Barber store Sunday afternoon, was started and continued indefinitely. Judge Ladd gave these boys a long talk on their behavior prior to ordering the cases continued.

The case of Joseph Josephs, a young boy, charged with being a delinquent child and being an accomplice of the Barr boy in breaking into the Booth drug store, was continued.

Nelson Mennard of St. Albans was sentenced to serve 30 days in the Chittenden county jail for vagrancy yesterday afternoon. Mennard was arrested in a barn on the Neighborhood House property, where he had been living for some time. He had not eaten anything since Tuesday, so he claimed, and had no clothes except what he wore. He said that he followed the Beacon Carnival shows from St. Albans here.

Because of the large volume of business and the nature of the cases, together with the characters of the respondents before the court, Judge Jed B. Ladd was complimented on the way in which he disposed of the business, by both members of the bar, visiting justices and friends who were present.

THE CHAUTAUQUA

How Money Can Be Saved by Buying Season Ticket

A comparative schedule of what it will cost to attend some of the entertainments of the Chautauqua, paying for each entertainment singly, rather than buying a season ticket, may be interesting. The cost of paying for all entertainments singly would amount to $8.13. The price of the afternoon entertainments only amounts to $2.98. The price of the evening entertainments alone, paid for singly, is $3.75. The price of a season ticket to the Chautauqua is $2.00, so that it would pay to buy a season ticket, even though one planned to go only to the afternoon entertainments, only in the evening, or only part of the time, morning, afternoon and evening. The average price of entertainments where one goes to half of the program, part in the afternoon and part in the evening is $3.34, and attendance at only one-third of the entertainments, paying singly, would cost $2.24, more than the price of a season ticket. There are still some season tickets to be had by calling up the store of C. A. Barber & Co. The first entertainment of the Chautauqua program comes this afternoon.
